WAR WORK TRAINING—The Morgan county vocational school has gone into its second week of training war workers, with almost a capacity enrollment for one machine.

The trainees are progressing very nicely in their work and will soon be placed in essential war jobs.

Two boys that had some previous training in the NYA shop will be placed in machine shop work next week. They are Billy Wilder of Wrigley and Harold Dyer of West Liberty.

Of course, we all understand that an expert machinist cannot be trained in six weeks, but it is remarkable how much machine shop practice can be learned in this short length of time if one applies himself diligently.

A few more trainees can be taken care of at the present time. This school is here for the training of people in Morgan and surrounding counties.

Take advantage of this opportunity while it knocks at your door.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies Prepare Heavy Blows in Italy; Jugo-Slav Guerrillas Threaten Nazis Despite Outbreaks of Factional War; New Cattle Subsidy Plan Is Announced

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Riding in jeep, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (left) and Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark pause during front line tour to chat with British soldiers on Bren gun carrier.

EUROPE:

Prepare Attack in Italy

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army edged into position for a grand assault upon the Germans' new defense along the 2,500-foot high Masic ridge in southern Italy, while the Nazis prepared to meet the charge by massing artillery and mortars on the front.

On the Adriatic side of the battle-line to the east, Gen. Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army also drew up into position for the next big blow by crossing the short Trigno river at several points.

Meanwhile there were indications that the Germans might be planning a strong counter-offensive of their own somewhere in central Italy. Allied reconnaissance reported the steady flow of Nazi troops and material from the north toward the battle zone. No such counter-offensive was expected, however, unless the Germans' defense weakened Allied attackers and drew them into open country where Tank Specialist Erwin Rommel could maneuver armor.

Nazis Fight Guerrillas

Pesky guerrilla activity in Jugo-Slavia commanded the attention of the Germans, with Marshal Rommel dispatching strong mechanized forces to quell the armed bands disrupting communications and destroying industrial plants.

But the effectiveness of Jugo-Slav guerrillas was threatened by another outbreak of factional dissension between the forces of King Peter's government and the new so-called "freedom army" of Tito Broz, which fought independently.

While the two political organizations reportedly have been harassing the Germans from one end of Yugoslavia to the other, they also have been accusing one another of collaborating with the Nazis. Broz' faction sentenced 17 persons to death for such collaboration, including a former Jugo-Slav general.

In attempting to wipe out the two guerrilla armies, the German armored columns drove into the hilly country to which Jugo-Slav riflemen retire for cover.

TAXES:

Plan 2 Billion More

Opposed to any form of sales tax, the house ways and means committee was prepared to report a new tax bill for congressional approval, yielding only two billion dollars of revenue instead of the 10½ billion dollars asked by the treasury.

Of the two billion dollars, 600 million would be raised by new liquor taxes. Levies on spirits would be boosted to $10 a gallon, on beer to $8 per barrel, and on wine from five cents to $1 a gallon.

Other revenue would be obtained by increasing postal rates to three cents on local mail, air-mail to 10 cents an ounce, money orders 10 to 37 cents, insured mail 10 to 70 cents, and COD mail 24 cents to $2.40. General admissions would be raised to three cents for every 10 cents; electric light bulbs and tubes would be taxed to 15 per cent of the retail price, and there would be a levy of 20 per cent of the charge on bowling, and 20 per cent on billiard table.

If a sales tax were enacted, the CIO had warned that it would demand wage increases to cover additional purchase costs.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

ORE: Low-grade mines producing metals other than iron and copper were ordered closed down by the War Production board. Officials explain that production of several vital metals has outstripped the need. Premium prices to some mine owners were withdrawn, and imports of some ores banned. Hardest hit are "war baby" mines yielding bauxite, lead, chrome and molybdenum.

FRUIT: The air lines will haul fresh fruit in quantity after the war, predicts Sigmund Janas, president of Colonial Airlines. He believes that this swift transportation will eliminate the need of heavy packing and icing.

NORMANDIE: The former French luxury liner, the Normandie, has been completely refitted and turned over to the navy.

VETS:

Schooling Asked

Following recommendations of a committee of educators, President Roosevelt asked congress to appropriate one billion dollars for schooling of vets with six months service after the war.

Any qualified man or woman would be eligible for one year of study in a college or other educational institution, with the government paying the tuition and $50 living expenses for every single person. A married man would receive $75, with $10 extra for each child.

For persons with special aptitudes, it was proposed that the government finance their education up to three years. States would be in control of the program, certifying vets for assistance. About 8 per cent of the personnel of the armed services would take advantage of the educational opportunity, it was said.

People-Make News

Decorated for meritorious service as a gunner in a bombing raid over France, Capt. Clark Gable returned to the U. S. with 50,000 feet of colored film of army combat missions over enemy territory. Gable was to return to Hollywood to touch up the pictures.

One of the youngest robs ever to see action with the U. S. fleet, Walter ("Fuzzy") Cadwalader had gone off to the wars at 14.

RUSSIA:

Reds Tighten Noose

German armies fought desperately to draw themselves from the noose Russia's surging forces were attempting to pull tight in the great bend of the Dnieper river.

To the south, the Reds spilled over the flat steppes west of fallen Melitopol, and raced to thwart Germany's withdrawal of its forces from the Crimea.

Action along the whole southern front centered around the Russians' attempts to surround and smash the German armies threatened with encirclement from the rear, and the Nazis' desperate efforts to hold off the Reds with heavy counter-attacks while the bulk of their troops dropped back to the west, on the edge of the 1941 European border.

FOOD:

Margarine Tax

Because of growing opposition from the dairy bloc, a stiff fight loomed in congress over the proposal to eliminate federal taxes and restrictions on margarine.

While more consumption of whole milk was advocated, with "good" margarine substituted for butter, Representative August Andresen (Minn.) declared additional feed would supply sufficient milk for all purposes.

Consultant to the food and drug administration, Dr. A. J. Carlson of the University of Chicago, stated that present "good" margarine has nutritional values equal to butter, and tax laws strike at the poorer classes in most need of adequate nutrition. When the margarine tax was first enacted, he said, there was occasional fraud in the sale of the product and there was less information on nutrition.

Because cottonseed oil is an ingredient of margarine, there were charges that the congressional cotton bloc was interested in repealing the tax and restrictions.

INSURANCE:

Monopoly Question

With the controversy of whether or not the insurance business constitutes a monopoly brought up again with the Supreme court scheduled to pass on the question, Attorney General Francis Biddle urged congress to defeat a bill designed to exempt insurance companies from provisions of the anti-trust laws.

Under terms of the bill, the anti-trust laws would not be construed as regulating insurance, or as impairing state regulation of that business.

"It would establish a dangerous precedent," Biddle said, "under which other groups of special interests might apply for and receive immunity from the anti-trust laws; thus by a process of attrition, whitening away the gains made toward preserving and strengthening the system of free enterprise."

LIFT BLACKOUT:

Coasts Affected

Coastal cities can turn their lights on again. The war and navy departments have withdrawn the order requiring a partial blackout along the waterfronts, to prevent our ships being silhouetted against the sky.

Such clearly outlined ships were an easy target for prowling submarines. Because the submarine peril is much reduced, the military officials believe the blackout no longer necessary, it was announced. The order was effective November 1.

The administration is in the midst of one of its fiercest contests to "hold the line" against stabilization. It is the old question of subsidies for farm products and it looks like a fight to the death. The house agriculture committee, with Representative Steagall and others swinging over to the Republican side, is backing the bill which would renew the appropriations for the Commodity Credit corporation and cut out the subsidies to processors, distributors and some direct cash aid to farmers. The present legislation expires in January. A presidential veto is taken for granted for any bill banning the use of subsidies. Administration supporters believe that such a veto can be sustained, but they see a tough, bitter fight ahead.

The key to the whole difficulty is violent partisanship. Successful politics is like successful living—in the family, in the community, in the world—it depends on the ability to compromise. In this fight, there seems to be no one able to work out an acceptable compromise. Already the feeling is bitter.

Cost of Living

Complicating the problem is, as usual, labor's insistence that the cost of living has gone up higher than statistics show, that the Little Steel formula is no longer a fair yardstick for wage increases since decisions of the War Labor board, plus insistence of the director of stabilization, hold down wages while the administration has not carried out its promises to roll back the living costs.

The farm organizations and the processors and the distributors oppose the roll-back. They don't put it that way. They say they oppose subsidies for rolling back consumer prices. They argue that subsidies to increase production and support prices in a free market are all right—and are horses of another color.

The President sees no difference. Subsidies which permit the government to buy up commodities or make loans at a minimum price when the market price dips below that figure are all right, say the farm bloc, but they claim, the "new" subsidies go further than that in that they mean payments direct to the processor and distributor and also buying and selling by the government. This, they claim, is in itself inflationary because it means payments out of the treasury. They say they don't believe that the money will get back to the farmer, that it means "grocery bills paid by the government," with very little real saving to the consumer, and finally, which is the real rub, it means too much government control.

Subsidies and Votes

Of course, there is the point that the politician doesn't like to mention—nobody who depends on votes wants to be in a position later on of having to remove those benefits. Another point, not stressed, is that subsidies to processors mean that the government has a right to look into the books of private industry.

But to the President, it is subsidies or inflation. At a recent press and radio conference, the President said that he got the head of the Farm Bureau federation, Edward O'Neill, to admit that letting prices go up in a free market, which the government says would have to be the alternative of the subsidy if the farmer was to get the incentive for increased production, would mean a little inflation. The President then told the story about the man who took just a "little" cocaine. He soon became an addict.

It was then that a woman reporter, known for her spicy questions, asked if the President didn't think that if his measure was carried we might become subsidy addicts. The President didn't seem to think so. He pointed out that agriculture has been getting subsidies since 1933.

Whether or not there is danger in any of this mild economic stimulant which the administration feels is a wartime necessity, everybody admits that runaway inflation must be avoided if possible. The whole complicated machinery of stabilization was created to prevent it.

The proponents of the subsidy plan say that the fight against them is purely political. They say the Republicans naturally take the side opposite to the administration because they can win some farm votes as champions of higher prices to farmers if they take this stand. On the other hand, they believe that the anti-subsidy bill will be vetoed eventually and the Democrats say the veto will be sustained. If so, the Republicans will not be criticized for supporting a measure which is defeated. And the Democratic support in the house agriculture committee, subsidy supporters say, was "bought" by allowing the present subsidies for the products grown in districts of the congressmen who supported the bill, to stand.

The administration followers say that it seems strange for the Republicans to raise a cry against subsidies when tariffs are subsidies. They mention the sugar "subsidy." As for complaint that the subsidy on agricultural products would not reach the farmer, they call attention to the milk subsidies at present in operation where the man who milks the cow gets the subsidy direct.

Meanwhile, we know that the cost of living has already gone up. We know that we need full production of foodstuffs. We know that many farmers can't get the feed required to raise the stock or to fatten it to its most efficient weight for slaughter.

Payment of any money out by the treasury does mean more money in circulation but the subsidy proponents point to the kind of inflation we get when prices aren't controlled. The administration says it is better to control a few processors and distributors, even if Uncle Sam has to snoop into their books to see he isn't cheated, than to let that vicious spiral of prices and living costs start to mount.

In the next weeks you will hear a lot more of these arguments.

Food Contribution

The other day when I stepped into the broadcasting studio just as the Farm and Home Hour had ended, I found some cookies, some Brown Betty and a meat loaf sandwich waiting. These samples had been saved from a more elaborate layout of good things made with soy beans which had been the subject of the F & H broadcast.

I ate them with pleasure. Although the meat loaf was 25 per cent soy grits, it tasted exactly like meat to me. The cookies and the Brown Betty were excellent.

Soy flour and soy grits—the bread has some soy flour in it—are both on the market ready to contribute vitamins, mineral, protein, vim and vigor to our food, reducing the consumption of scarcer and more expensive products. A saving of from 20 to 25 per cent in meat and still having almost identical food values is nothing to be sneezed at.

Soy, it is pointed out, is not a substitute but a supplement to other foods and you would be surprised how many tasty dishes can be produced with it. The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics has a handy little pamphlet containing recipes, and you can get one by writing to the bureau, care of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

There are recipes for mint loaf, chile con carne, suggestions for use of soy with vegetables when they are served as a main dish; soy in sauces and mixed with cereals to give a richer protein diet—many suggestions for making what you have go further and accomplish more.

A Letter

Frankly, when I get a letter that makes me real mad, I sometimes mention it on the air. I shouldn't ever do it, I suppose, because I usually get a flood of sympathy which perhaps I don't deserve but one of the best replies I ever had was from a man in Spearfish, S. D., who wrote to me as follows:

"Each morning at 11 a. m. MWT, I tune you in. Now, I may be mistaken, yet it seems to me that at times you think some of the letters you receive are 'hitting below the belt' which has always been considered cowardly and unjustified. But in a great many cases, if we don't hit below the belt, we just make a total miss as it seems that some of the stuff that is put out for us to follow shows that there is NOTHING above the belt to hit at."

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Nazi occupation authorities in Holland have even cut the Dutch horse-meat ration one-third. The weekly meat ration coupons, which used to be good for 150 grams of horsemeat, now are good for only 100 grams, or about two ounces, according to a report published in a German language daily in Holland. The cut means a great deal to the Dutch, whose living standards have lowered.

THIS bag was planned as a gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines and writing materials scattered about. If you like to take an assortment of reading matter to bed, sick or well, you will enjoy a bag like this. Its hanger hook may be sewed to box springs and there you are with everything handy. The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery materials in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the sateen lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside part were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; those being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

NOTE—This bedside bag is but one of thirty-two useful things to make for the home, that are illustrated with detailed directions in BOOK 8 of the series prepared for readers. The price of BOOK 8 is 15 cents. Send your order to:

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO OUR 'M' DAY

BILL JONES had a good job, especially for a young man. On graduation from college, with an engineering degree, he had found employment with a large construction concern. He seemed to have an assured future.

Then came the draft law and Bill was listed as 1A. Uncle Sam said he was to go into the army. The pay would be $50 a month with clothes and food. The hours would be whatever part of the 144 of each week might be called for. There would be no overtime. He would be on the job every day and hour unless an army doctor pronounced him ill. He would go where he was told to go and do what he was told to do.

Bill did not object. To defend the country when called upon was a responsibility of citizenship. He gave up a job paying $100 a week and cheerfully accepted the one at $50 a month.

Bill Brown, too, had a job, as a mechanic in a plant making airplanes. It was a good job as measured by standards of that time, paying $35 a week of 48 hours. As the making of airplanes was an essential industry Bill was listed as 4B and told to stay where he was. Because of federal laws, to stay on the job he was forced to join a union, and the plant could work only 40 hours a week. The other 104 hours of each week were at his disposal to do with as he pleased. He did not have to produce a doctor's say-so should he fall to show up for a portion of the prescribed 40 hours. The union he had been forced to join demanded that Bill be paid $50 a week, and later that it be again increased to $60. Then the government decreed that, as a war emergency, he must work 48 hours a week, but that he must be paid time and one-half for the extra eight hours. It added up to $72 a week, approximately $324 a month, in Bill's pay envelope.

Both Bills are citizens of the United States. Both owe to the nation the same obligations of citizenship. While Bill Jones was losing a leg in the battle of Tunisia, Bill Brown, by direction of his union bosses, was out on strike carrying a banner in a picket line, demanding another increase in pay which the government saw to it that he received.

Had the once much advertised "M" bill become a law, both Bills would have been drafted. The one to wear a uniform at $50 a month, the other to wear overalls at the $35 a week he was then receiving, and with as many hours work as might be demanded.

That "M" bill, had it become a law, would have drafted the plant as well as Bill Brown, the worker. There would have been no excessive price for the product of the plant, and no profits. It would seem the discarded and forgotten "M" bill would have provided a real democracy of wartime. It would have meant an "all-out" war on the part of everybody, but those who seek votes were afraid of what it might do at the polls.

'OTHER FELLOWS' INCOME IS UP IN WARTIME

THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE tells us the average individual income was 24.1 per cent higher in 1942 than in 1941 and 61.5 per cent higher than in 1939. The figures make us feel rich and are undoubtedly correct but it is hard to find the individual who will admit they apply to him. It was the other fellow who received the extra money. By states the highest increase was in Nevada, amounting to 68.8 per cent as between 1941 and '42. The lowest was in New Hampshire, where it was but 8.6 per cent. In the central farming states it ranged between 16.8 per cent in Illinois to 29.9 in Iowa, with a general average in those states of 21.7. Utah topped all agricultural states with 48.6. The government is taking a considerable portion of the increase as additional income taxes. That, with a greater cost of living does not leave most of us with any extra spending money.

WRITING SERVICEMEN

THE POSTMAN brought a letter from an old, old friend. It did not contain much that was news but what a vast amount of pleasure those few lines produced. When we, on the home front, can derive so much enjoyment from a letter, we can realize what the receipt of even a few lines from home means to one of our boys on a far-away battle front.

CONGRESS HAS APPROPRIATED FOR WAR purposes more than twice as much money as has been spent or for which orders have been placed. Should the war end soon the American taxpayer would not be more than the fact that some of those billions were not used.

IF, BECAUSE of their war experience, the manufacturers produce for us one-half the new or improved gadgets they promise, there will be no problem about postwar employment.

A fragrant pot of coffee and a few tasty cookies can do the job of entertaining that a dinner once did if there's a spirit of friendliness and plenty of good conversation.

Keep Up Morale, Entertain Simply Even in Wartime

Even if all foods were rationed I'd still say, don't ration hospitality for we need friendly get-togethers, the refreshment and relaxation that being with one's friends gives.

Dinners or entertainments with stupendous foods are out of style at least for the present, but that doesn't mean you can't invite people over for a steaming cup of hot coffee and a few simple but tasty cookies.

And, if you want to do things more elaborately, why, it's quite the thing to ask Mrs. Jones to bring over an extra supply of sugar or butter or canned goods if she has them—and is willing to share.

Some time ago progressive diners were quite the fashion. Now again they can become fun. The plan is to serve, let's say three courses, and have each course at a separate home. It's a good idea to have the homes within short walking distance of each other. Serve soup or fruit cocktail at first home, the main course at the next home, and then have dessert and entertainment at the third home. Or, after dessert, the group can plan to go to a movie or concert or to attend some sport in season.

And now for the business of food—with a few points or none at all. Here are cake and cookie recipes which are the cream of the current crop:

Applesauce Cake.
(No icing needed!)
1 cup sugar
¾ cup shortening
1 cup applesauce
1 egg
1 teaspoon soda
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins
1½ cups cake flour

Cream shortening and sugar. Add applesauce and well-beaten egg. Add soda dissolved in water. Sift dry ingredients and add to mixture. Fold in raisins and bake in a greased square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 hour.

Honey Oatmeal Wafers.
(Makes 16 wafers)
1 egg
½ cup honey
1 cup oatmeal
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons melted butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts

Beat egg until light. Add honey, continuing to beat. Then fold in remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls, about 2 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Flatten slightly with a knife dipped in cold water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 10 minutes or until a delicate brown.

A nice type of cookie to have on hand during these times is this one for old-fashioned gingersnaps. The recipe makes 10 to 12 dozen "snaps" and the dough keeps indefinitely in the refrigerator so that it can be used and made up into cookies as needed:

Gingersnaps.
(Makes 10 to 12 dozen)
1 cup molasses
½ cup shortening
¾ cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon ginger

Heat the molasses over low heat to the boiling point. Put the shortening in a large mixing bowl, pour the hot molasses over the shortening. Stir until shortening is melted. Sift the flour, ginger, soda and salt together and add to molasses mixture. Mix thoroughly. Form into rolls on slightly floured waxed paper and chill in refrigerator. Slice very thin and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a hot (425-degree) oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Having friends over for dinner?
They'll enjoy this light soufflé put together quickly and easily with mushroom soup and chicken.

Chocolate Pinwheels.
(Makes 3½ dozen)
1½ cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk, unbeaten
3 tablespoons milk
1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream butter until light and fluffy. Add egg yolk and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough into two parts. To one part, add chocolate and blend. Chill dough until firm enough to roll. Roll each half into a rectangular sheet, ½ inch thick, and place chocolate sheet on top. Then roll as for jelly roll. Chill overnight or until firm enough to slice. Cut into eight-inch slices. Bake on an ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (400 degrees) 5 minutes or until done.

A delicious soufflé with a few piping hot biscuits and honey makes a lovely dinner for a chilly night. Simple though it is, it will satisfy your company well.

Thrifty Souffles.
(Serves 6)
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
1 can mushroom soup
1 cup chopped chicken
2 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
3 egg whites, beaten stiff

Combine tapioca, salt and mushroom soup, of consistency to serve, in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and stir until mixed. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (250-degree) oven 30 minutes or until soufflé is formed.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

RUSSIAN RELATIONS IMPROVE
The diplomatic grapevine reports that inter-Allied relations with Russia are going pretty well now. This is certainly true on the surface, and while some irritations have occurred below the surface, both sides have shown a real tendency to try to get along.

Most serious sub-surface irritation was over the Mediterranean Council, through which Russia, the United States and Britain were to confer regarding Italy, North Africa and the Balkans.

The Russians, snubbed earlier in the summer regarding preliminary Italian armistice terms, took the Mediterranean Council seriously and appointed as their representative Andrei Vishinski, the famous prosecutor in the Russian purge trials. This was the equivalent of sending the most outstanding member of the U. S. Supreme court or the leading lawyer of England.

Vishinski is a man of national stature, capable of making Mediterranean decisions without consulting Moscow. But to represent the United States on the Mediterranean Council, Secretary Hull sent Ed Wilson, U. S. ambassador to Panama. Wilson is a thorough-going, competent diplomat who can handle any routine job and handle it well. But almost no one outside diplomacy or Panama has heard of him. He has no national stature and he cannot act on his own.

Immediately it developed that Wilson was to act as a glorified messenger and report everything back to Washington. The British representative was to do the same. In other words, Churchill and Roosevelt were to make the decisions, and the much publicized Mediterranean Council was to be a mere reporting agency.

This immediately roused Russian wrath. They had welcomed the Council, appointed a top man. So for a moment they considered withdrawing. However, for the sake of Allied harmony, they stayed on and are giving the Mediterranean Council a trial.

POOR 'PA' WATSON

Toughest job White House Secretary Maj. Gen. Edwin ("Pa") Watson of the White House secretariat has to tackle each day is keeping the President's appointment schedule on time.

Frequently FDR will sit talking to an old friend for 15 or 20 minutes over the allotted time, and that snarls the White House schedule for the rest of the day.

This is hard on the general's nervous system, especially when bigwigs from the war or navy departments are waiting to discuss military matters. On such occasions Watson is not above barging in and breaking up the conference.

The other day when the President's old friend, Governor Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, was overstaying his time—through no fault of his own—Watson walked in and began to parade nervously about the room.

"Well, here's the undertaker, Mr. President," grinned Kerr, catching the hint. "If one of your callers gets so he doesn't move, 'Pa' will move him."

Roosevelt laughingly motioned Watson to a chair.

"Sit down and talk to us for awhile, general," he said. "We're having a very interesting conversation."

With a sigh, Watson took a chair.

BACK TO NORMALCY

Industry's eagerness to get back to peacetime operation is seen in the deluge of mail received by the chemical division of WPB. Theme of every letter is: Unlace the straightjacket and give us a chance to expand.

This pressure hits the chemical division more than any other because of the tight control which that division has exercised over the industry, and also because of the tremendous future of plastics and other developments in the chemical field.

Controls are so tight that no materials may be bought or sold without clearance with WPB, and in the course of getting clearance, the applicant must state a lot of intimate facts about his business, including buying price, selling price, profit, and inventories.

The real meaning of the complaint is that the industry is not worried about paper work so much as it is worried about limitation on profits. Under government control, prices are held down by the fact that sales are limited to war needs, but when this restriction is removed, the demand for chemical materials will be terrific, and profits will go through the ceiling.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The Argentine government had already retracted its ban on the Jewish press even before President Roosevelt denounced the ban.

Robot Radio Operator

The lives of many torpedeed seamen may be saved by a new invention.

It is an automatic wireless transmitter. The ship's name and code mark are inscribed on a film, and the vessel's position is inscribed on the film as often as conditions demand.

When a vessel is torpedeed or mined, the transmitter comes into action and continues to send out the ship's name as long as the ship remains afloat without the radio operator standing by. The inventor is Captain Espeseth, a Norwegian seaman.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

"And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us that would come from thence." These are the words of Abraham broadcast from paradise over the gulf which separated Lazarus from the place of suffering where the rich man had gone after leaving this world. The gulf was impassable.

There is a gulf in this world between a sinner and a Christian. The Christian is alive in Christ. The sinner is dead in trespasses and sins. The Christian is clothed with a robe of divine righteousness which was purchased with the blood of Christ on the cross. The sinner is clothed in a robe of his own righteousness which, according to the Bible, in God's sight is as filthy rags.

No sinner can possibly understand a Christian. A Christian to some extent can understand a sinner because he himself has been a sinner. The Christian remembers the pit from which he was taken and he knows a sinner is in that pit. According to the Bible, a Christian man has no right to marry a sinful woman and a Christian woman has no right to marry a sinful man. If such a marriage has taken place, then according to the Apostle Peter the Christian should live the best life possible hoping by the life to win the other party to the Lord Jesus Christ. The writer has known in his evangelistic work many and cases. He has known Christian women married to men who knew nothing of God. He has known Christian men with broken hearts because their wives were not saved.

Yes, there is a gulf in this world between a sinner and a Christian. It is, however, a passable gulf. Anyone who isn't a Christian who reads these lines can by simple saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ cross the gulf that has separated him in feeling, understanding, aspiration, and hope from some Christian loved one. A sinner whose mother is a Christian and who loves him with all the passion of a mother's heart may if he will trust Jesus Christ cross the gulf and enter into the fellowship of the Christian experience which his mother has and for which she has prayed that her son might know and enjoy. On the other side of the gulf that separates sinners and Christians who really love each other there is now the beckoning hands of Christians calling the sinners to come across the gulf. Since the Christian has come to know his Lord he cannot cross the gulf and go where the sinner is. The sinner who has looked across the gulf where the Christian is now has been unconsciously stay where he is. So, sinner, why not set sail and cross this gulf and do it now?

The gulf which separates the sinners and Christians on earth but which is passable becomes in eternity an impassable gulf. Abraham said, "They which would pass from hence to you cannot. Neither can they pass to us that would come from thence." Lazarus in Abraham's bosom may have longed in his heart to take a drink of water from the fountain of life to the thirsty lips of the rich man, but he could not do it. The rich man did not ask to get out of hell. He prayed for a drop of water. He asked that Lazarus might come back to earth as a missionary and preach to his brothers. Yet he did not say, "Abraham, may I come to you and Lazarus?" He either knew that his doom was sealed and he could not pass the gulf or he was so hardened by sin that even the suffering of hell did not make him repent. The gulf was impassable.

Godless mothers whose little babies have gone to heaven will never be able to cross the gulf from hell and go where their babies are. But the babies will not need their mothers. They will be in the arms of Him who when on earth said, "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Wayward sons who die without God even in spite of the prayers of their Christian mothers will not be able when in hell to cross the gulf to reach their mothers who will be at home with the Lord. Their mothers, however, will have Him. Who when He hung on a cross remembered His own mother when He said, "Behold thy mother."

Yes, the gulf that is passable on earth becomes impassable in eternity. Turn, sinner, turn. Why will you die? "There is a line to us unseen that dary between God's patience and crosses every path: the hidden bourn—His wrath." God says that He does not will the death of any man but rather that all men would come to Him and live.

FUNK, HODGES, PROMOTED

Promotion of M. C. Funk, vice-president and general manager of the Kentucky and West Virginia Power company, to the position of vice-president and general manager of the Appalachian Electric Power company with headquarters in Roanoke, Va., as announced Friday, highlights two important changes in the personnel of the Kentucky and West Virginia Power company, effective Dec. 1.

R. E. Hodges, present assistant general manager of the Kentucky and West Virginia Power company, will succeed Mr. Funk, with headquarters in Ashland, Kentucky.

Mr. Funk, however, will continue to serve as vice-president and a member of the board of directors of the Ashland firm and will continue to make his reports to N. M. Mr. Funk's years of constructive service to his company, Ashland has merited the fine promotion which has been given him.

NAVAL OFFICER TRAINING

Seventeen year old high school seniors and graduates who desire to become flying officers in the navy or marine corps may now be interviewed and processed in the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, Room 933, Enquirer Building, 617 Vine Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, according to announcement received by principal of Morgan county high school.

Applicants who qualify will be enrolled in the naval aviation cadet training program.

Every enlistee will be required to remain in high school and graduate on schedule.
Before being sent to flight school proper, a number of those accepted will be given two semesters of college training as apprentice seamen, V-12 (a), and a few will be sent to naval air stations for a short period of indoctrination as apprentice seamen. Whether in college or indoctrination each V-5 man will receive $50 a month plus board, room, and clothing.

Upon his being assigned to aviation cadet school, each man will be paid $75 a month in addition to the board, room, and clothing.

At the completion of cadet training, each candidate will be commissioned either as an ensign in the navy or as a second lieutenant in the marine corps and will thenceforth receive regular officer's pay and allowances plus 50% of the base salary additional as flight compensation. Total pay for these ranks may be as high as $291 for single and $327 for married officers per month.

Further information on this advantageous program may be obtained from the principal or by writing direct to Lieutenant W. P. Roberts, Aviation Officers, Office of Naval Officer Procurement, 617 Vine Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The quicker the war ends the better it will suit most Americans but if we think our problems will end when the fighting stops, we are mistaken.

NO ARMISTICE TODAY

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this world went wild with joy. The world cried "Peace". But there was no peace. There was only a truce.

This time there must be no truce. This time we are grimly determined to see the job through. We will make whatever sacrifice is necessary. We won't let it happen again.

Armistice Day this year marks the beginning of a new call upon our patriotism. A call directed especially to the people of this community.

One of the gravest threats to our all-out war effort is a shortage of pulpwood. We who live in the pulpwood-cutting areas are asked to make good that shortage. We will be paid for our wood, of course. But we are asked to do it as our special part in the war—backing up our own boys in the service.

In whose honor will you cut your cord? A son? A brother? A friend?

Give us his name, and yours, so that both may be entered on the roll of honor. No boy shall die because we failed.

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

Is the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Social Security Bill Necessary?

Honorable Robert F. Wagner
U. S. Senator from New York, co-author Wagner-Murray-
Dingell Bill

John W. Scoville
Nationally-known industrial economist, author
and lecturer

SENATOR WAGNER OPENS: America's primary post-war goal is full employment, in private enterprise, of all our workers, farmers and ex-servicemen. To back up free enterprise in the difficult transition period, as well as in time of future prosperity or depression, we need an expanded national system of social security as provided in our bill, which establishes a nation-wide system of public employment offices to help servicemen and war workers find jobs in private industry, or on farms, provides national unemployment insurance up to 26, possibly 52, weeks. The present old-age insurance system is expanded to include 15 million more persons. Factory, farm, white collar workers, and their families, are protected against loss of wages due to sickness or total disability. It assures adequate medical care to the insured and his family under a nation-wide health and hospital insurance plan. All ex-servicemen are given paid-up benefit rights for their period of service and full coverage for one year after discharge. Increased social insurance contributions by employers-employees would finance the program for 10 to 15 years without government contribution except for servicemen. Such an increase—amounting to 5 billion dollars in the first year—would help mop up surplus purchasing power in war-time, enable virtually the entire working population to pay-as-you-earn now for post-war security.

MR. SCOVILLE CHALLENGES: Description of this bill is not proof that it is necessary, which is what we are debating. The employment offices will be hiring halls dominated by A.F. of L. or C.I.O. and applicants without the right union cards will be out of luck. The bill offers no security, for unlike private companies, the government issues no policies, and sets up no adequate reserves to protect the insured. To compel workmen to buy insurance when they need the money for clothing, food, and homes is despotism—not free enterprise. Congress might repeal the act; the insured would then lose what they had paid in.

SENATOR WAGNER REPLIES: Public employment offices have been operated without bias or favoritism for many years with lasting national benefits to employers and employees. As for social insurance, the security is and will continue to be the best in the world—U. S. Government bonds backed by the resources of the nation. Mr. Scoville evidently lacks faith in our country's future economic soundness and in the integrity of Congress. Workers strongly favor the legislation because it affords full money's worth in social security, establishes a foundation for each family to build greater security and happiness in the post-war period. That's good business and sound Americanism.

MR. SCOVILLE OPENS: $1161 and the socialistic laws sponsored by Senator Wagner are patterned after the social security laws introduced into Germany 40 years ago by Bismarck to check the growth of socialism. This appeasement of Socialists did not prevent the Germans being drawn into two world wars and losing all liberty under the National Socialist Party. In 146 years, without any of these social security measures, we became a powerful and rich nation, and our workers received much higher wages than were paid in Europe. Is it necessary now to scrap the Constitution framed by Washington, Jefferson and Madison, which gives Congress no power to pay our doctor bills and care for pregnant women, and adopt the principles of the German Socialists Marx, Bebel and Lassalle? This bill taxes the employee 6% of his wages and taxes the employer 6%. Most of the employer's contribution will be taken from workmen in reduced wages or higher prices for what they buy. It also taxes every farmer, merchant, doctor and lawyer so that most workers would pay about $300 a year above present high taxes. This bill is an insult to self-reliant Americans and assumes that we are incompetent children who cannot be trusted to handle our own money.

SENATOR WAGNER CHALLENGES: Is Mr. Scoville unaware that federal action to improve national health began with Pres. Washington and has developed progressively? The first compulsory health insurance system was established by Congress, for merchant seamen, in 1796; federal appropriations in aid of maternity and child care began in 1921; were established under the Social Security Act of 1935. His viewpoint places him in opposition not only to federal health measures, but to every provision for social security, including unemployment and old-age insurance. In this utterly reactionary view, he departs from the overwhelming majority of Americans and their leaders in both parties. A recent poll of our bill shows 59% for—29% against.

MR. SCOVILLE REPLIES: Communism, which taxes wages 100%, destroys the incentive to work, makes citizens dependent on government so they cannot oust the dictator in control, regiments and enslaves the people and destroys freedom. Partial Communism under $1161 which levies a 12% tax would effect, in lesser degree, the same evils as complete Communism. Only 4% favor this Bill enough to pay the taxes which it imposes. Under $1161 northern workers would never get their money back for some of their contributions would go to jobholders or be spent in the south. $1161 is a poisoned dagger aimed at the heart of free America. Political Pied Pipers are leading gullible voters down the socialistic trail to equality of poverty and the security enjoyed by

ABOUT
RUBBER

Ceylon, Africa and tropical America are expected to provide the U. S. with 54,000 long tons of crude rubber during 1943. In 1939, it is estimated, 499,473 long tons of crude
were imported by this country.

Para, Brazil, was the first great rubber center. Founded in 1615, it became an important port for foreign trade about 1775. A hundred years later it was the rubber capital of the world.

Rubber obtained from a native wild vine in the Belgian Congo made Leopold II of Belgium wealthy during the 1890-1910 period. Plantation rubber development killed the Congo vine boom.

See Here,
Private Hargrove!
by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion
Hargrove, former feature editor of a North Carolina newspaper, has been inducted into the army and has spent some time in training at Fort Bragg.
In his story he has given prospective inductees considerable advice. Immediately before induction he advocates a period of "paining the town red." Once in, the new soldier should "keep an open mind" about what he learns because
"the first three weeks are hardest."
Private Hargrove has been missing the point of some of his essential training
and as a result he has had considerable K.P. duty. Some of his friends have been advanced to corporal and his sergeant
has asked why he was not promoted.

CHAPTER V

"Me?" The idea had never occurred to me. "I'm just not the executive type, I suppose. Back at the News, the boss told me that if I stayed there sixty years, I'd never get promoted. I'm just not the type that gets promoted."

"Let's look at the record," said
the sergeant. He pulled his little black notebook from his pocket.

"On the drill field Saturday morning, you pulled forty-eight bones
out of fifty marching commands.
Everything you did was backwards."

"Friday morning you fell out for reville without your leggings. Saturday you had your leggings but no
field hat. Monday morning neither of your shoes was tied and none of

military legend, is a cook whose

your shirt buttons were buttoned.
Tuesday morning it was without leg-
gins again."

"I'm never really awake," I protested, "until ten o'clock."
"You ain't awake then," he scolded. "Every Monday morning
without fail I have to wake you up at least a dozen times. I have to look behind all the posts around
here to see which one you're sleeping against. You snore and disturb your classmates, too!"

He was exaggerating there, I told him, I don't snore. And I'm sleepy only on Monday morning. The rest of the time I'm alert and energetic.
"You're too energetic, sometimes!" he roared. "Just this morning, when the lieutenant was coaching the platoon in rifle sighting and
you were on fatigue duty as usual!
That was a pretty one! You ran up and down the battery street twenty-
two times in thirty minutes and you
saluted the lieutenant every time you passed him! Do you think he ain't got a thing to do but return
your salutes all morning?"

This was evidently a rhetorical question, so I didn't answer it.
"You don't salute an officer every time you see him when you're right
there at his side practically all day.
You salute him the first time you see him and the last time you're going to see him."

"And then when the lieutenant
explains that to you," he sighed,
"then what do you do? The next time you see him, you salute him
again and then ask him was you
supposed to salute him that time!"
He put his head in his hands and drummed sadly on the toe of his foot locker. He raised his head after a time and looked into the notebook again.

I knew what was coming next and I edged toward the door.

"And then you low-rated the mess
sergeant's recipe for creamed beef
on toast and told him his chow was the worst in the Army. And you said you was going to start eating in the next battery. That hurt his feelings so bad that he burned the potatoes for the next three meals!"

I promised to apologize to the mess sergeant. The sergeant read out of his notebook for five or six minutes more, enumerating the things I had consistently done wrong.

"Now, do you know," he asked wearily, "why you don't get the red stripes when they give them out?"
"I suppose I'm just not the executive type," I told him.

A mess sergeant, according to military legend, is a cook whose brains have been baked out. This does not apply to the mess sergeant in our battery, whose feelings are easily hurt by cruel remarks and who weeps tears into the mashed potatoes when he's picked on. This is simply the old Army definition of a mess sergeant.

All of us rising student cooks are eligible to become mess sergeants.
Staff Sergeant Adams told us in our first cooking class yesterday morning. Then we can sit out in the cool dining rooms and yell back orders for the cooks to yell at the student cooks to yell at the kyspees.

This is not the beautiful goldbrick-ing life that it seems, though. The mess sergeant has to make requisitions
and keep records on all the menus, see that the food is prepared properly and supervise the work of the cooks, the student cooks,
and the kyspees. Besides this, he must listen to all the gripes about
his food and to the threadbare jokes
about cooks who get drunk from lemon and vanilla extract.

All this he must do, with his brains
baked out.

The cook, lucky little rascal that he is, also leads an ideal life. He is allowed to believe that he knows
more about cooking than the mess
sergeant will ever know, although he is not supposed to tell the mess sergeant that he does. He works one day and sleeps the next two.

If the cook is not feeling cheerful,
he can pick on at least one student cook and at least five kyspees. On the battlefield, he is in the safest position behind the lines, since the food is endowed with more sentimental value than the top sergeant.
The jokes about Army cooks being shot at from both sides are not based upon fact.

However, friend cook has to greet
the morn before the morn gets there.
On the days when he works, he has
to get up between 3:00 and 3:30 o'clock in order to prepare a substantial breakfast for about two hundred healthy, growing boys whose appetites are exceeded only by the size of their mouths and the power of their lungs.

Yesterday we started to school,
with cookbooks and manuals and
loose-leaf notebooks for our homework. The only way in which it differed from public schools was that the naughty boys didn't have to go and sit with the girls. Also, the dunce seat, instead of being in the corner of the classroom, was said to be behind a large sack of potatoes in the battery kitchen.

The only hope for an easy time in class was gone in this school.
There's no percentage in bringing a shiny red apple to a teacher who has the key to at least one well-stocked pantry.

In the kitchen, they tell us, all the cleaning-up work is to be done
by the kyspees, so that the cook
may be doing more important things. This, unfortunately, doesn't apply to the daily task of cleaning
the stoves thoroughly. The stoves, it says here in the books, are the cook's tools and he must do his own grinding.

It isn't worth the time to wait for the stoves to get comfortably cool
before you begin the twilight beautification of these overgrown infernos.
In order to avoid the rush at the theater, and to let the kyspees off
early, start work now.

The stoves must be cleaned inside and out—thoroughly. First, shake down the fire. All the live coals must go into the ashpan under the grate. That much is simple. Then remove the ashpan, red coals and all. It must be dumped into the ash can out on the garbage rack. This entire procedure should be simple, too, it says here. All you have to do is catch the front
handle with a heavy glove and catch
the little hook in the rear with the far end of your cap lifter. Here we go!

Carry the ashpan well in front of you. Ain't it hot! When you get to the door, simply open it with the toe of your shoe. Like this. Like—
Doesn't seem to work. Try again.
Try pushing the right screen so that the left one will swing slightly toward you. Ready? Slightly push the right screen. Something seems to be wrong here.

During this time, you will become increasingly aware that the glove
over the ashpan handle is becoming hotter and hotter. Just as you get your toe into the door, the heat
penetrates the glove and you decide—very suddenly—that perhaps
it's best to drop the whole matter.
Drop it slowly, carefully, tenderly—
if you can. Do not drop it upon the wooden floor. Look around, if you think you have time, and locate
an overturned boiler on which to set
it. Whew, that hand's hot! No boiler? Then drop it anyway!

You will find that dropping the ashpan, even though you did it gently, has released a small amount of floating ash, all of which will be absorbed into your mouth and nose.
Patience, brother. See that the ash-pan isn't lying where it will burn
anything, such as a perfectly good wooden floor. Pour cold water on the glove, wait for the resulting steam to blow away, prop open the door as you should have done in the first place, and try, try again.

This time you will almost reach
the garbage rack before the glove
again gets hot. Slide, Kelly, slide!
You won't get there without dropping the whole pan into the clean road, but at least you tried.

Beat the pan against the ash can several times for sound effect. Return to the kitchen, where the mess
sergeant, who was watching you
through the window all the time,
will direct you to return and clean
it up.

By the time you have finished
and look about you, the kyspees
have finished their work and are sitting around gsping at you as if you were a steam shovel. A very,
very black steam shovel.

Isn't gas a wonderful fuel?

Private Sher and I were sitting out on the back steps to dodge the cleansing work going on inside when we saw the sergeant bearing down
on us from the other end of the battery street.

"It's no use scooting inside, Hargrove," said Sher. "He's already seen us. Look tired, as if you'd already done your part of the work."
Private Sher is the goldbricking
champion of Battery A and always knows what to do in such an emergency.

We both draped expressions of fatigue over our faces and the sergeant skidded to a halt before us. He reached into his hip pocket for the little black book and aimed a finger at both of us.

"Bumsl!" he shouted. "Bumsl! I worked my fingers to the bone yesterday morning getting this platoon
to pretty up the barracks for inspection. Comes inspection and two privates have dirty shoes lying sprawled all over the floor under their bunks! Private Hargrove and MISTER Private Sher! Report to Corporal Farmer in fatigue clothes."

We reported to Corporal Farmer,
who looked at his list of jobs. "As much as you don't deserve it," he said, "you two goldbricks are in line
for canteen police."

Mr. Private Sher and I walked up the battery street toward the canteen.

"Is this canteen police business
good or bad?" I asked.

"Oh, so-so," he said. "You have to clean up the papers and cigarette
butts around the post exchange first thing in the morning. Then you come around and check up three or four times during the day."

I stopped, aghast. "What do you do between times?"

"Just be inconspicuous," said Sher.
"That's all there is to it. Please pick up that candy wrapper over there. My back aches."

We cleaned up the grounds around the post exchange and sat for a while in the shade, watching a battery going through calisthenics.
With beautiful precision, the soldiers swung their rifles up, down, to the right, to the left. They went through the quarter, half, and full knee bends and the shoulder exercises and the rest of the routine.
"Those boys seem to be improving," Mr. Sher, I said.

"Result of hard work," said
Maury. "Personally, I get awfully tired watching this. We'll wear our selves out. Let's go over to my kitchen and handshake for a bottle
of milk."

"No," I protested. "We must go to my kitchen."

"To avoid a tiring argument," suggested Private Sher, "we will go to both our kitchens. We can't be thrown out of both of them."

After successful forays on both kitchens, Private Sher began to yawn with boredom. "My dear Har-

as if you'd already done your part of the work."

grove," he said, "we must stimulate our minds. Let us adjourn to my place for a game of checkers."
Private Sher's "place" was only one flight of stairs removed from my aquarium, so we adjourned.

After two games of checkers, Private Sher waved his arms. "This is folded!" he said. "You are no checker player, Hargrove. You have no idea of tactics. Let us sit by the window and watch our comrades drill. There is something stirring in the sight of fine young men perfectly executing a marching order."

While we were sitting there being stirred, another corporal disturbed
us. He wanted us to go with him to haul coal.

"Much as we would like to help
you haul coal, my good man," said Maury, "we are now actively engaged in the work of policing up the post exchange. Feel free to call upon us at any other time."

The corporal placed his hands on his hips and stared at us. "You're being punished," he asked, "with canteen duty?"

"There's no need to be vulgar,"
said Sher. "If you will excuse us,
it is time for us to go again to look
for cigarette butts around the post
exchange. Coming Mr. Hargrove?"

"Coming, Mr. Sher. And a good day to you, corporal!"

THE SANCTITY OF THE HOME

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:14; Matthew
5:27-30; Mark 10:2-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.—Matthew 5:8.

As the divinely appointed center
of man's life, the home holds a place of such importance that it is the special target of Satan's offensive. That has always been true, but it seems that in recent years the onslaught against the home has been intensified.

Books, plays, movies, magazines,
all contribute their filthy efforts to break down all sense of moral responsibility. Sex is magnified, and not in any useful or normal sense,
but rather for the stimulating of unholy desires and purposes, the breaking down of Christian standards of living, and the ultimate prostitution of the most sacred of all human relationships to the lowest level of which animals might well
be ashamed.

All this means that this lesson
should be taught with a holy boldness and plainness which will make it effective for God in our homes.

We do not like to talk about adultery and related sins. We must speak with care and tact, but perhaps the time has come for some straightforward dealing with an unpleasant situation.

I. Protect the Purity of the Home

(Exod. 20:14; Matt. 5:27-30).

Any violation of the divine plan
for the marriage of one man and
one woman, in loving communion
for the founding and maintenance of the home, is a direct violation of the law of God.

It is also a violation of the law of man. It brings serious results in the destruction of the home, and in the ruin of individual life—physical,
moral and spiritual.

The words of Jesus broaden the interpretation of the commandment
to cover all sexual impurity in thought, word, or deed.

We are to be firm and definite in our dealing with this temptation to moral uncleanness even though it be
as painful as tearing out an eye or losing a hand. The command here is not necessarily to be interpreted literally. Tearing out an eye will not help if there is lust in the heart.
The point is, go to the root of the matter, and get rid of it even if it hurts. Most of us are far too easy on our sinful impulses. We dally
with them when we should destroy them.

II. Recognize Marriage as a Divine Institution (Mark 10:2-8).

The Pharisees, who had devised
some ingenious schemes for getting rid of an undesired wife, wanted to get Jesus involved in the question.
They put him up against Moses who had allowed divorce.

Jesus made it clear that this was not in accord with God's plan and only took place because of their sinful hardness of heart.

As a proper background for the discussion of divorce He set up the divine origin of marriage. He made it clear that marriage was ordained by God, and that it involves a holy union of two individuals which makes them one.

All those who look forward to marriage should realize that it is not a casual thing, or a merely temporary legal contract. It is a union for life—be it for better or worse, in sickness or health, in prosperity or adversity. All who are married should highly regard their sacred vows.

The high place of marriage in Christian teaching dignifies that relationship and denies the misleading and destructive theories of men.
(Mark 10:9-12).

Failure to observe God's law in these matters may involve a person in the guilt of gross sin. This passage and others teach that divorce
is to be permitted on the one ground
of adultery (Matt. 5:32).

Divorce and remarriage other than on grounds permitted by God
involves the parties in the sin of adultery. Men may make laws
based on the civil contract of marriage which provide differently, but man cannot remove marriage from its place as a divine institution, nor can he add to or take away from God's law concerning it.

Aware, as we are, of the laxness
of some branches of the church in such matters, and the almost entire lack of standards in the world, we cannot but present the plain teachings of our Lord and urge every reader to follow the commandment
of God's Word.

There can be no question that divorce is a major evil in our day.
Statistics are positively shocking,
but they are cold and quickly forgotten. But who can fail to see, and who can forget, the awful woe
brought into American home life by divorce.

Had as it is, the awful effect on parents is nothing compared to the nervous, moral and spiritual shock
which comes to children in broken homes. And that problem is everywhere.

An excited woman stalked into

That Nagging
Backache
May Warn of Disordered
Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry,
irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid
and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache,
headache, dizziness, getting up at night,
leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere.

OUR COMIC SECTION

ALL FOR NOTHING

A man came home in the small hours of the morning and, having a wholesome fear of his wife, decided to proceed with caution.

Taking off his shoes, he crept noiselessly upstairs, stealthily opened the bedroom door, and, with the greatest care, crawled into bed. With a sigh of relief, he went off to sleep.

In the morning he looked round for his wife, and suddenly remembered she had been staying with an aunt for the past two weeks.

Right?

Billy—Which apple do you want, Tom?

Tom—The biggest one.

Billy—You ought to be polite and take the little one.

Tom—Why should I be just to be polite?

School Daze

Johnny—Don't you know Sir Cumference?

Jimmy—No. I never met him.

Johnny—That's funny. He gets around an awful lot!

DROP IN SOMETIME

Wife—Where did you get that red lantern, dear?

Absent-minded Prof—Some careless fool left it out in front of our house beside a hole in the road.

Let Us Pray

A Sunday School superintendent who was slightly overenthusiastic about regular attendance announced at assembly: "Out of our whole school this Sunday only one student is absent today—little Jimmy Crockett—let us pray he is ill!"

Friend-in-Law

Usher—Are you a friend of the groom, madam?

Lady (arriving at church)—I should say not! I'm the bride's mother!

SELLING POINT

He'd been standing in the town square for some time, trying to sell his wares without much success. But now he'd managed to collect a crowd, and started again with renewed hope.

"Now here's a comb for you!" he said hoarsely. "And what a comb! You can twist it, bend it, hit it with a hammer, and it won't break. You can—"

Then a tired voice came from the crowd:

"But can you comb your hair with it?"

No Improvement

Smith—Why don't you change the sign over your store by putting in your full first name. "Trade With A. Swindler" doesn't look very good.

A. Swindler—I figure that wouldn't be much improvement. You see my first name is Adam.

Please Don't!

Hypnotist—Now, ladies and gentlemen, I shall make this man forget everything.

Voice in the Back—Hold on, he owes me $5!

TO YOUR Good Health

THYROID EXTRACT

When an individual is nervous, jumpy, overactive mentally and physically, heart rapid, the physician usually advises a metabolism test which shows the rate at which the body processes are working. In a case such as the above, the test will usually show that the body processes of this individual are working 15 per cent or more faster than normal. And the cause of this speeding up process is an overactive thyroid gland. The treatment is rest and iodine and if necessary removal of the thyroid gland by surgery or X-rays.

On the other hand, where the individual is sluggish mentally and physically, is overweight, and skin shiny, the metabolism test will usually show that the body processes are working at a rate of 15 per cent or more below normal. The cause is an underactive thyroid gland and these patients are given thyroid extract daily to bring the rate at which the body processes work up to normal.

The above symptoms of the overactive and underactive thyroid gland describe what should be called advanced cases. What about cases where the symptoms are not so pronounced?

In the slightly overactive cases, rest of body and mind is needed, and in the slightly underactive cases some stimulation of mind and body is needed.

Physicians have been finding many children in whom nose and throat infections, and also intestine disturbances and infections occur so often that they suspect some underlying condition of the body as being the cause. Dr. M. H. Stiles in "Archives of Pediatrics" (children's diseases) states that because some children were having distention of the abdomen and other symptoms pointing to a lack of thyroid juice in the body, studies of the basal metabolism were made in a group of 30 children and teenage boys and girls, in whom there were persistent colds, bronchitis and inflammation of ears and of stomach and intestine. Of the 30 children studied, 90 per cent had basal rates below zero or less, and 60 per cent had rates of minus 10 or less, and for the whole group, the average rate was minus 11.

Of the 30 patients studied, 18 were given thyroid extract. Of these 18, there were 15 who showed great improvement, and only three were not improved. Where, then, these symptoms keep occurring, the metabolism test might well be given.

Excess Fluid in Body Puts Strain on Heart

When the heart is beginning to fail, the first symptom noted is shortness of breath after exertion, and especially after eating. Palpitation—hard beating of the heart—is another early symptom of a failing heart. Even lying down does not ease the shortness of breath or quiet down the palpitation for some minutes.

Another symptom to appear in early heart failure is swelling of the ankles or of the other parts, especially the liver.

The first thought in the treatment of early heart failure is to reduce the amount of work done by the heart by resting more, strengthening the power of the heart muscle yet quieting it if necessary. The drug used to strengthen the power of the heart is digitalis which not only slows, steadies and strengthens the heart action, but helps to drive the water from the tissues. The work of the heart is greatly reduced by reducing the amount of water in the tissues.

In Southern Medicine and Surgery, Dr. J. B. McLester, Birmingham, the noted food and nutrition authority, makes the following suggestions in the treatment of heart patients.

"Weigh the patient every day; increase in weight is the first sign of excess fluid in the tissues. The increase in weight occurs several days before the appearance of liquid-swelling—in the ankles and other tissues. If the swelling (edema) is present or if the weight increases, have the patient stop using salt in his food and rest as much as possible." Excess water in the tissues must be removed by use of ammonium chloride, in 15 gram doses, three times daily for three days, if the low salt diet fails to remove it.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What is the meaning of re-infection type of tuberculosis? Is there a cure for it?

A.—Re-infection type of tuberculosis means that tuberculosis has healed, but lung has become infected again. Treatment is rest of the lung.

Q.—Is the yolk of egg "butter fat?"

A.—Yolk of egg is unusually rich in fat but it may not be classed as "butter" fat.
